

Discovery Summer Camp Hamburg 2012

The summer holidays in Germany has begun and many familys and their kids travel in other countrys, most of them english speaking. But you also can improve your English here, in Germany, for example in hamburg.

There started a great and new sort of learning English and have some fun. The 49 pupils who go there come from different citys in Germany, some of them are from other countrys and don't only improve their English, but also learn german. Some students from the Bucerius Law School, called "Teamer" give different workshops in English and the pupils can choose between media, environment and sustainability and business. In all of them is English the first language and the people write and talk only in English. That all is an other kind of 'school', but when you ask the pupils, they would never say that it is boring or uninteresting. Because the Teamer also fill in the freetime with some interesting and funny activities. One day the pupils and their teamer walk down the Reeperbahn, an other day they visit a Rockconcert oder the musical "Sisters Act". They also play some games which promote teamwork and understanding other cultures. The best examples in this case are a big paper chase at the second day and the singing reading of the Koran from a boy, who touched many of us. In paring of learning English and have fun, they meet new and different people, make new friends and maybe someone knows know what he want to study in the future.

So that's a week full of fun and friendship and the pupils improve their English automaticly. A great alternative then the expensive and the most time very stressfull traveling in an other country.
